

The Desert Hawks

They have sharp eyesight, sharp claws, and hooked beaks
Their meals are rabbits, squirrels, and chipmunks
With insects like dragonflies, crickets, and moths they fill their cheeks
They mostly like reptiles like lizards, turtles, and frogs

There are Red-tailed hawks, Cooper hawks, and Harris hawks
There are Broad-winged hawks, Swainson's hawks, and Common Black hawks
There are Sharp-shinned hawks, Zone-tailed hawks, and Gray hawks
There are Rough-legged hawks, Ferruginous hawks, and Northern Goshawks

The desert hawk has keen sense
They go above cloud height
Around hawks other animals get tense
Hawks are important and need saving
